Rotarians from around the region are gathering on Guam this week to celebrate the 50th anniversary of the Pacific Basin Group of Rotary Clubs.

The group began in 1973, when there were just three clubs — Guam, Tumon Bay and Saipan. It was organized under a district based in Tokyo.

Today, there are nine clubs with about 275 members: Guam, Tumon Bay, Northern Guam, Sunrise and Pago Bay on Guam, two in the Federated States of Micronesia and one each on Saipan and in Palau.

Victor Camacho, the assistant district governor for the group, said this week's gathering is "a way to celebrate 50 years of bringing Rotary into the region."
